Line Security / Commercial Fire Waiver

Your monitored alarm system relies upon your telephone line to send the alarm signal to our central station. In the event that your phone line is disabled, your security system will not be able to communicate with our central station. If this occurs, no one will be notified of the alarm system breach. Line security is an available option in the form of a cellular backup unit, which requires an additional installation cost and monthly fee. The Customer is responsible to provide a reliable means of transmission of the alarm signal to our Central Station. All VoIP (voice over IP) systems are not a reliable means of transmission.
